

Guidelines on Anti-Corruption Practices and Maintaining Disciplines of Officials of the Thai Industrial Standards Institute

Realizing the significance of anti-corruption, good governance and awareness raising of all officials on anti-corruption. The declaration of intent to anti-corruption has been announced by the Thai Industrial Standards Institute in order to fulfill the common intention and comply with the discipline of Thai government service, the executives and officials at all levels must perform their duties in compliance with practice guidelines as follows.

1. Pursue the declaration of intent to anti-corruption as well as adhere to good governance principles and utmost benefits of citizen and the country.

2. Commit to carry out their work and deliver service with service mind, transparency, integrity, non-discrimination, preserve client confidentiality and disclose information to public properly.

3. Abide by rules, regulations and disciplines of Thai government officials, code of conduct and code of ethics of the Thai Industrial Standards Institute.

4. Do not act any way that indicates an intention or potential exposure to corruption and conflict of interest.

5. Conduct or abstain from conducting one's duties, exert one's power improperly in all forms, whether for the giving or taking of bribes, offer, promise, ask for or demand assets or money as well as gifts, rights or other benefits that are opposed to morality, ethics, laws, rules, regulations and policies as well as lead to the organization, officials or related parties to receiving benefits to which they are not entitled.

6. Do not neglect or ignore any acts that are witnessed that could be within the scope of corruption involving the Institute. It is the duty of all officials to report such a matter to their supervisors or responsible persons, and fully cooperate in any investigation that may follow.

7. Executives and supervisors at all levels have to act as a role model of anti-corruption practices, and then behave themselves to supervisees with integrity and fairness including motivate them to be good officials.

8. Executives and supervisors must fully support and develop their supervisees to uphold disciplines, prevent them from violation and impose disciplinary punishment to the offenders.

Mr. Nattapol RANGSITPOL
Secretary General
Thai Industrial Standards Institute
Given on 2 October B.E.2560 (2017)